Flight From the City (first published 1932)

Ralph Borsodi

Follow this and additional works at: https://research.library.kutztown.edu/greenrevolution

Part of the Home Economics Commons

Recommended Citation

Borsodi, Ralph (1967) "Flight From the City (first published 1932)," Green Revolution: Vol. 5 : Iss. 5 , Article 17.
Available at: https://research.library.kutztown.edu/greenrevolution/vol5/iss5/17

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by Research Commons at Kutztown University. It has been accepted for inclusion in Green Revolution by an authorized editor of Research Commons at Kutztown University. For more information, please contact czerny@kutztown.edu.
We have since learned, for starting chickens. But since raising chickens was almost the first item in our food raising program, we went dietary, we wanted to have plenty of them, and the supply of fresh investment in our poultry-yard. Unless experienced personal guidance is available, no amount of mere reading can prevent the gigantic mistakes which this move upon him. It was his idea to raise chickens for a living. which this man relied did not feel it necessary to explain what grit had hardly any of his original 500 chicks left when he discovered left. He began to lose chicks in batches of 50 in a single day. And he was purchased from a neighbor. Later, we e more, that the body the higher be the cures that we make half an to lie in wait for us and to steel our the earth, physics can do the like. physics can do the like. to the number of vibrations of pure sugar, and rub the mixture of grains of this mixture, and sub- to the number of vibrations of pure sugar, and rub the mixture of grains of this mixture, and sub-